

GOOD TIMES – SEASON 3

John Amos Final Season!

Synopsis:

Good Times was a popular spin-off of the All in the Family spin-off Maude, detailing the trials and tribulations of a family living in the projects on the south side of Chicago. Florida Evans (Esther Rolle), her husband James (John Amos), their wisecracking son J.J. (Jimmy Walker, whose "Dy-no-mite" became a popular 1970s' catchphrase), and neighbor and best friend Wilona (Ja'net DuBois) exploited, to great comic effect, subjects such as inflation, unemployment, and bigotry.

This two-disc collection contains all 24 classic episodes from the third season, when Good Times tackled topical themes from venereal diseases to the U.S. Bicentennial and plot points like J.J.'s surprising engagement, Thelma's man troubles, Michael's problems in school, and James buying a gun to protect his family from local crime. This was the final season for star John Amos.

Target Audience:

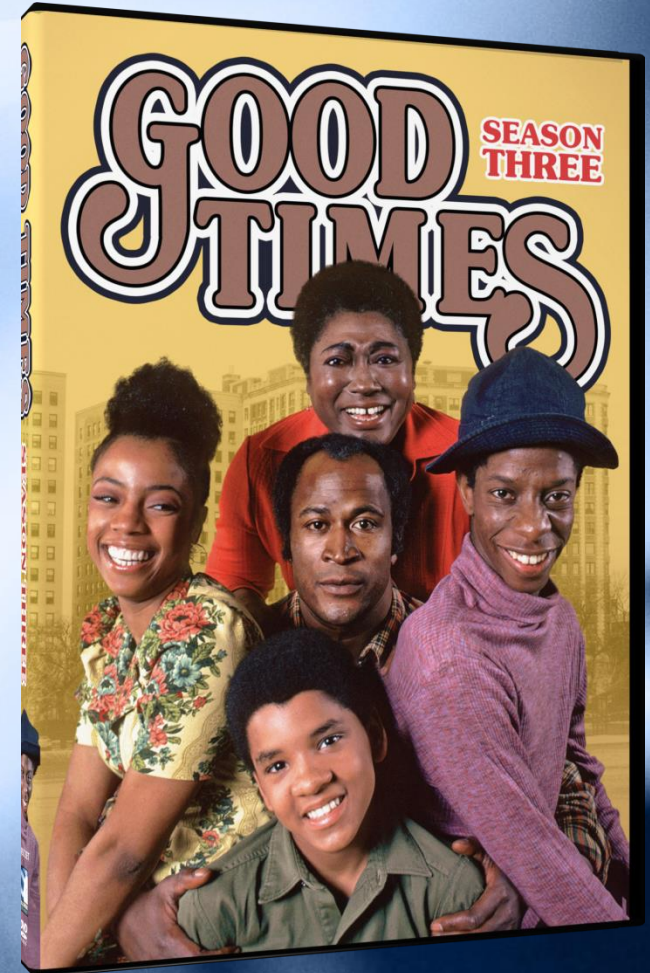

All Ages

Notable Cast/Crew:

Produced by Normal Lear who also produced All in the Family and The Jeffersons
Starring: Esther Rolle (Driving Miss Daisy), Jimmie Walker (Airplane!) and John Amos (Die Hard 2)

Key selling points:

- Ran for 6 seasons and was nominated for 3 Golden Globe® Awards
- The first 3 seasons ranked in Nielsen's top 24 TV shows.
- Considered a breakthrough series for American television
